Supt. Muscoe Burnett to Ask the Council For An Investigation.

ALL CITIZENS INVITED

Mayor Lang States That the Only Filtration Required Is Through a Rotary Strainer.

HE THINKS WATER IS TOO MUDDY

Supt. Muscoe Burnett, of the Paducah Water company, has addressed the following communication to the council, to be presented at the next meeting:

To the Mayor and Council, Paducah, Ky.

Gentlemen: This company respectfully requests that you appoint, at your next meeting, a committee to thoroughly inspect and examine the location of the intake or suction pipe, with the view to ascertaining the truthfulness of the charge made by certain irresponsible parties that the sewage or drainage of the city, or any part of it, is, or can be, pumped into the water that is furnished the citizens of Paducah.

The stockholders of this company number about forty, all of whom are citizens of Paducah, and with but few exceptions have families, and I can safely state without contradiction, that they value the health and lives of their wives and children far more than they do the few dollars that it would take to extend its suction pipe beyond the drainage or sewerage of the city.

It is true that the water furnished recently has been very muddy—as has been the case in every city situated on the Ohio river—due to the unprecedented rise in the rivers, but it has been absolutely free of any contamination from the drainage of the city.

We will be glad to have any of the citizens to make this inspection with your committee.

Very respectfully,
PADUCAH WATER CO.
By MUSCOE BURNETT, Supt. and Treas.

Mayor Lang was seen by a reporter this morning relative to the question, and asked what effect the ordinance authorizing the water company to use a patent rotary strainer instead of a crib, had on the original ordinance requiring the company to furnish "clear, filtered Ohio river water."

"There is no doubt but that it repels it," replied the mayor. "I have known it for a long time, and that is the reason nothing has ever been done. I don't know that the council knows anything about the ordinance, or knew of its existence until it was published. But I knew about it, and all the filtration it requires of the company is 'through' the strainer."

"As to the muddy water question, we have no more trouble in this respect than many other cities. There is no way, apparently, to filter the water we use. The city of Paducah uses 1,000,000 gallons of water a day, and no feasible plan has yet been suggested for filtering it. It is not a matter of dollars and cents, but of practicability."

"I believe that the water is as pure as that used by any other city that draws its supply from the river. There is no sewerage in it. Oak Grove was formerly drained entirely through the city, but now it is drained into Perkins creek, which is quite an advantage. I never could understand why it ever was drained the way it was. But that disadvantage has disappeared."

"I remember the analysis of the water and do not remember whether it stated that it contained organic matter or not."

It is certain that the water question will come up before the council at its next meeting, but is not known what can be done.

The water company invites any one to investigate the source of water supply, and Mayor Lang says that there is no doubt but that it comes from the Ohio river.

The company also has an emergency pipe, and whenever, if ever, it becomes necessary to get water from the Tennessee river, the company will notify the people in order that they may boil the water, or do whatever is necessary to purify it.

THE CHARGE WAS DISMISSED

When Jim Sherrill, an old colored citizen, was placed on trial this morning in the police court for assaulting his aged sister, Phoebe Mayberry, the prosecuting witness was called.

"Yessah, yessah, I see comin' sah," was the prompt response from the court room, and there was a rustling about and confusion as she disentangled herself from the other spectators.

The old woman shambled up, and chewing vigorously, said: "Wait till I takes ma bonnet off, judge." Off came the bonnet, and losing herself in the big chair, she looked benignly at the court and waited to be touched off.

"Now, Aunt Phoebe, listen," cautioned the court. "We don't want much talking in this case. Answer the questions that are asked you, and that's all."

ELLIS GLENN.

THE LONG TALKED OF TRIAL BEGINS AT PARKERSBURG.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 9.—Ellis Glenn, the woman who, it is alleged, masquerading as a man, forged notes for $1,400 over the names of George and Vesta Hoover, was put on trial today.

Ellis Glenn says she is Ellis Glenn, and not E. B. Glenn, the alleged man who is supposed to have done the forging. She had a twin brother, she says, whom she tried to save from punishment in Illinois by masquerading as a man, but she claims that at the time she was not aware of the forgery committed in Pennsylvania.

It is asserted by some that the prisoner is not the E. B. Glenn they knew here and others again say that the two are really one and the same person. The accused relies on her sex to prove her innocence. She says that proof will be adduced showing that beyond doubt the forger was a man.

The woman was brought here from Illinois, where she had been convicted of forgery and sent to the penitentiary as a man. When delivered to the prison authorities her sex was discovered and she was turned over to the sheriff here to be tried for the Hoover forgeries.

Mr. J. F. Perrine, the commission merchant, had a fine silver watch stolen from him yesterday. He made a search for the missing article and found it in a pawn shop. OUR EXPANSION.
A great deal has been said recently about expansion, remarks the Philadelphia Post. As a matter of fact, there has never been anything else in the United States. There will probably be nothing else. The whole gospel of American life is to get bigger, whether it be a matter of dollars or of acres. With all its wealth and all its commercial gain this country is not yet one-fourth settled; its resources have been merely scratched, and after the tens of millions of acres now idle are under successful cultivation, there remain the great deserts which can be made to bloom. Texas is spouting oil and making millions overnight, and every week some new field of rich oil is found. Take this one item of illuminating oil. Twenty-five years ago the exports amounted to 204,000,000 gallons; last year they were 721,000,000 gallons. The other day a ship left this port with a cargo of nearly 200,000 cases of refined petroleum for Japan. The figures of the rail trade are almost as startling and it is not surprising to hear that the railroads are preparing to build at Atlantic ports elevators to hold millions of bushels as necessary additions to facilities which already exceed anything of the kind on earth. We not only light and feed and build bridges, and clothe and adorn, but we keep our friends clean. It is officially announced that the United States is capturing the soap trade of the world.

So great is the American opportunity that the optimist cannot believe his own arithmetic. Take, for instance, the fact that Parliament, in order to find revenue for the terrible drain in South Africa, has placed an export duty of a shilling on every ton of coal sent out of Great Britain. It opens a large part of the world to American coal, which means millions of dollars added to our wealth, for the British exports of coal last year amounted to 44,000,000 tons.

Wall Street will have its ups and downs, but the great American people move forward in the line of world-conquest—the greatest and best conquest of all, the peaceful winning of the world's trade.

The ordinance quoted yesterday which was passed by a Democratic council and approved by Mayor Yeiser, relieving the water company of the filtration of water except through the patent rotary strainer, speaks for itself. Mayor Lang counters it to repeal the old ordinance requiring the company to furnish "clear, filtered Ohio river water," and the water company so counters it. The action of the present administration, and of former administrations, bears the construction out, and the action of the water company bears it out. Hence it makes no particular difference what may be said in opposition to such a construction of the ordinance.

The United States has decided that this government will not consent to an arbitration of the claims arising out of the expulsion of British subjects from Hawaii unless England consents to arbitrate certain claims of this government known as the Fiji claims. Our claims amount to much more than those of the British. The department is anxious to clear up all the claims pending between the two governments, and if Great Britain will agree to arbitrate the American claims the United States will undoubtedly be willing to adopt this course with respect to British claims.

Great Britain has decided that all American captured fighting in the Boer army must remain prisoners until hostilities cease. The case was that of a man named Morgan, of Virginia, who is now a prisoner in Ceylon. The highest officials of the government decide that such Americans are to be treated as belligerent enemies and kept prisoners until the close of the war. This view will doubtless be concurred in by this government. If our people want to take part in a war that doesn't concern them they must take the consequences.

Will some one please explain what has become of the $100,000 reward fund? Has Mr. Justus Geibel been drawing that too? Of course $100,000 is a mere bagatelle to the people of Kentucky, and they wouldn't miss it, but simple curiosity prompts a great many of them to wonder what disposition has been made of it, how much has been spent and for what it was spent. We know the gang doesn't need any of it as long as there are so many other people's salaries to draw, but will there be any of it left for the enterprising Frankfort gang when salaries give out?

A Fort Scott jury has decided that one of the laws passed as a result of Mrs. Nation's crusade, authorizing county attorneys to summon and examine witnesses relative to violations of the anti-liquor law, is unconstitutional. Mrs. Nation and her hatchet were not present, which probably accounts for the decision.

The supreme court of Kansas has just decided in favor of the big irrigation law, which makes possible the biggest irrigation scheme ever attempted in Kansas. After they get through irrigating the state they might devote a little attention to civilizing it.

Sometime ago a jug of water drawn from a hydrant in the city, was sent away for chemical analysis. The result of that chemical analysis has never been published. If there is anything reassuring to the public in the analysis, now is a good time to make it public.

REVENGE OF ROWAN.

WHY HE APPLIED THE TORCH TO A FILIPINO VILLAGE—TREACHERY AND A HOT FIGHT.

Leavenworth, Kas., July 9.—Details of the alleged offense of Capt. A. S. Rowan, the burning of a Filipino town, for which he is to undergo investigation, have been received here in a letter from Private John E. Watson, Nineteenth Infantry, dated Jaqua, Bohol Island, May 19. The letter says:

"A native spy came into the post and walked over to Capt. Rowan's tent and looked in and found it empty, but when he started to go away he saw Corporal Daly standing a few yards away. The spy took Corporal Daly for the captain and, walking up to him, gave Daly a folded note. As Daly took the note to read it the spy drew out a dagger and stabbed him to death. The insurgents had planned to rush in and cut the rest of us down in the confusion that would follow the captain's death, but we coolly fell in under arms and formed a skirmish line around the post. The insurgents thought they had got Capt. Rowan, so when the skirmish line advanced they met about 100 men in the bush. About fifty of the enemy were killed and about a dozen taken prisoners, who were killed while trying to escape. The men caught the spy who murdered Daly. They would have tortured him to death, but some man with a cooler head than others shot the wretch in the head. The town was burned and a few Filipinos killed."

WHAT SOME MEN STILL LIKE.

Men who have risen to eminence still find a great deal of pleasure in the things that amused them in their earlier and less prosperous days. As an example here are two stories told by the Saturday evening Post:

"The languor of the soft spring days carries me back in memory to the beginning of my professional career," said ex-Senator Chas.andler, of New Hampshire, the other day to a friend.

"There used to stand in the streets of Portland, not far from my office, some dry goods boxes which were much sought by citizens when the weather was fine and time hung somewhat heavy upon their hands. When the spring feeling was strongest on me, I used to think, from my perch on one of these boxes, that life would be a delightful grind if I must go back to my desk and work. Since then I have learned that there is such a thing as a habit of duty."

"When a man has once acquired it he can no longer sit quiet on a dry goods box and snuff himself. He must always be doing something, or he is uncomfortable, and enforced leisure is more irksome to him than the hardest of labor. I acquired the duty habit forty years ago; and a balmy spring day, though it never fails to call up memories of my youthful love."

"I fairly made my heart leap again as it used to when I was a lad. If I had owned the railroad I would have thrown business to the winds and ordered the conductor to stop the train and hold it till I could get off and help the boy catch that wood-chuck."

"It would if he ever caught it," he added, dreamily, after a pause.

HOW DO YOU CARRY AN UMBRELLA?

The man who sat nearest the window said he didn't mind the wet weather. "It gives me a chance to see how people carry their umbrellas," he said. "I have such a firm faith in my umbrella deductions that I would not be afraid to choose a wife with them for a guide."

The woman on his left smiled. "I'm glad I'm not out there on the street," she said. "You'd be picking out all the kinks in my disposition along with the rest of them."

"Oh," said the man, "I sized you up a long time ago. You carry your umbrella, when it's furred, just like that woman across the street. You grab it in the middle and go foraging ahead with the ends of the handle digging into the unfortunate pedestrians who go before and follow after."

"And what does that signify," asked the woman on the left.

"Alertness, activity, selfishness and inconsiderateness."

"U-m-m-m," said the woman.

"But just look at the third woman in the procession," said the man. "I pity the men folks about her house. I'll warrant they have to get their own breakfast about six mornings out of seven. I never yet saw a woman who dragged her umbrella along so that you could track her by the trail of the tip who wasn't dilatory and shiftless. She never sees on a button, or darning, or mends, and her breakfast dishes are seldom washed before two o'clock."

"That other woman who is bustling along holding to the top of the umbrella handle like grim death and pointing the tin down and forward in a kind of south-by-westerly direction is altogether different. She would set the world on fire if it wasn't waterlogged. I'm not sure that I'd want to be married to her, either. She'd push everything before her and when she took a notion to clean things up a mere man would have nowhere to lay his head. What she is good for is serving on committees."

"That woman in the gray skirt is a ven-and-nay sort of a person. She wants to agree with everybody and follows wherever led. Women who carry their umbrellas with the point backward and downward are always unassertive."

"But just look at that girl who spins along swinging her umbrella in a circle as if it were a magic wand. I like her. She's jolly and good natured and gets more pleasure out of life than ten ordinary people. There's a woman carrying her umbrella swung across her shoulder like a shotgun. She's a true soldier of fortune, and was never known to die. I can't think of anything that would faze her."

The man paused.

"And what would you say," asked the woman, "about that girl who catches her umbrella horizontally across the small of her back and catches either end into the crook of her elbow?"

"Well," admitted the man, "she is a new one on me. I never met her before, but I wouldn't be afraid to wager that she's conscientious to a degree and has a heart as big as all outdoors."

But there, he added, "comes the most even tempered woman of the lot. She cuddles her umbrella protectively under her arm as if she doesn't want even it to get hurt in the crowd. That woman is gentle and thoughtful and kind."

The Hostess' Funny Story.

"A very dignified young man took a seat in a smoking car," said the hostess, who joined in the after dinner story telling. "Next him were three traveling salesmen, well dressed, jolly fellows, one of whom suggested a game of cards, and the others agreed. They appealed to the young man to take part and make up a four handed game."

"Thank you, I never play cards," came the response to the invitation.

"I am sorry for that. Will you have a cigar with us?" added the spokesman, producing his case.

"I am obliged to you, but I never smoke," replied the dignified young man.

"They thought they would jolly the young fellow out of dignity, so the leader produced a 'traveling companion' and asked:

"As you do not play cards nor smoke you will not refuse to join us in a drink?"

"I thank you, gentlemen, but I never drink."

"With this a venerable man with white hair and a high forehead, who had been sitting in the seat behind the young man reached forward and tapped him on the shoulder.

"I have heard what you have said to these men," said the elderly fellow, and I admire you for the stability of character which has enabled you to shun bad habits. I have a daughter in the parlor car, whom I should like to have you meet."

"I thank you, sir," replied the young man, turning about and facing the gentleman, "but the fact is I never intend to marry."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Cherokee Dish.

An article of food much used by the Cherokees is made from corn. The process is first to soak the corn in strong lye made from hickory ashes, just as white people in the country make hominy. This removes the hulls. The corn is then put into a large mortar made by hollowing out the end of a large log and is pounded by a huge pestle.

As the process of pounding goes on the crushed corn is removed from the mortar and riddled with a sieve made of cane and then fanned in the wind to remove the hulls. The "grit," as the coarse meal is called, is then replaced in the mortar and pounded into a fine meal. It is then boiled up with cayenne pepper and other ingredients. A small amount of lye is left in the meal, and it has a tendency to preserve it for a long time. However, if it is stored, it is regarded as a great delicacy. It is known as "corn-hanna."

The food is sometimes varied by the addition of nuts, which is considered especially fine. With the nuts it is called "sa-nutch."

In the older times cakes were made of "corn-hanna" by taking the substance in a rudely constructed rock oven or in hot ashes. These cakes would keep for a long time and, in connection with the wild game, proved nourishment for the Indians on their long hunts. Many of the older Cherokees still use the mortar and pestle to make the dish.—Kansas City Journal.

The King's Finger Bowl.

When a member of the royal family comes to dinner, it is a point of etiquette to provide none but the illustrious guest with a finger bowl at the end of the banquet. The other diners must get on somehow without that convenience.

The reason is a curious one. In early Georgian days one never knew who was loyal. Every other man might be a Jacobite in his secret heart. Now, it was a piece of Jacobite ritual whenever the toast of "The King" was drunk secretly to pass the goblet over any water that happened to be by the drinker. This was supposed to convert the toast into that of "The King over the Water," the exiled Stuart at Rome or St. Germain.

On this becoming known the court insisted that there should be no water within reach of any guest, and the prohibition still holds.—London News.

Never Washed Herself.

Benevolent Old Lady (to little girl)—My little dear, do you wash your face and hands every morning?

"No, mum."

"Good gracious! That's perfectly dreadful. Do you wash your face in the middle of the day?"

"No, mum."

"Dear me! When do you wash your self?"

"I never washes."

"Heaven! It is shocking how depraved the lower classes are! I must organize a society to see that children are properly washed. Tell me, little dear, do you really never wash your self?"

"No, mum. Mamma washes me every morning."

Not Anxious.

"You have quite a number of the poets," said Gooddy, who was inspecting Wooddy's library. "Ah, there's Browning. Do you understand him?"

"No, I don't," said Wooddy.

"Ah," said Gooddy, continuing his examination, "have you Prætor?"

"Certainly not. What's the use of Prætor? I ain't anxious to understand him."—Philadelphia Record.

Cheered by It.

"You are sure you can support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?" asked the heavy father.

"Sure," answered our hero, with the assurance of youth.

"Well, I'm glad to hear it. It's more than I can afford any longer."—Indianapolis Press.

Goyer was at work in a field adjacent to the road, and seeing the approaching runaway, rushed out to stop it and rescue the child.

He seized the bits, and was knocked down by the horse and trampled on, being almost instantly killed.

Had Run On the River For Many Years and Was a Popular Man.

Pilot Wm. R. Gupton, after a long illness, died from general debility yesterday at his home in Smithland, removing one of the best known and most popular of the older river men.

Mr. Gupton was born at Smithland and was about 55 years old. He had for many years run between Cincinnati and Cairo, Florence, Ala., and Cairo, and Nashville and Cairo, and was known all along the rivers where his boats touched.

His health began failing some time ago, and for many days past he had been in a precarious condition.

He was unmarried, and leaves a mother, two sisters and a brother.

The remains were buried yesterday afternoon at Smithland, beside those of his old comrade, Captain Clem Matheny.

HEALTH BOARD.

IT WILL MEET TODAY TO CONSIDER WATER AND SANITATION.

The Board of Health will meet in the office of Dr. Jeff Robertson this afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of discussing the sanitary condition of the city and for the further purpose of taking some definite action in the matter of giving to the city pure water. A San reporter in an interview with a member of the board of health was told that the citizens would be given pure water and that the members of the board would spare no efforts to effect this end.

"Pure water is as much essential to the general health of the city as was the beef inspector," he declared.

"There is much sickness in the city and if a change is made the people will soon see the difference in the amount of sickness."

The city authorities have already put forth efforts to have the sanitary condition of Paducah improved and several cases where a breach of ordinance has been committed have been in court and the offenders fined.

With the combined action of the city authorities and the board of health the public will soon experience a decided change in the general health of the city.

Diamond Cement.

Diamond cement is made as follows: Take five ounces of fine gelatine, four ounces of water, and one ounce of glacial acetic acid. Let the mixture stand for several hours and then heat it to effect solution, after which add ten grains of carbolic acid to preserve the cement. The following formula is given for making the well known cement of Pompeii, or universal cement: Dissolve eight ounces of sugar in twenty-four ounces of water in a glass flask on a water-bath, and to the thin syrup add two ounces of slaked lime. Keep the mixture at a temperature of about 70 to 75 degrees centigrade for three days, shaking frequently; then cool and decant the clear liquid. Dilute six and a half ounces of this liquor with as much water, and in the mixture steep sixteen ounces of fine gelatine for three hours after heating to effect solution. Finally add to the mixture an ounce and a half of glacial acetic acid and fifteen grains pure carbolic acid.

Want an Automobile Speedway.

The managers of the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo are endeavoring to secure permission to run off an automobile road race some time during next summer. A level fifty-mile stretch of road near the city has been selected and valuable prizes will be offered. The promoters desire it to be understood that they do not favor promiscuous road racing, and if the desired permission is granted they will take unusual precautions to avoid accidents.

Triumphs of Mechanical Genies.

In 1831 Matthias Baldwin built the first American locomotive with his own hands and it took him a year to do it. Nowadays if one man were compelled to perform the manual labor of a single day in the Baldwin locomotive works it would take him just twenty years. In this he would need the help of modern tools. If he had not these tools the day's work would mean his lifetime.

NOW ON AT WALLERSTEIN'S.

We never do things by halves. When we "go in" to cut prices we cut them lower than any other house, as comparison will tell. To prove this fact we have inaugurated a Demonstration Sale of Men and Boys' Clothing, and in many instances we have cut the prices 10 to 15 per cent. less than others, and in every instance a little less than their lowest prices.

Just to Demonstrate

Our ability to undersell other houses we have placed all $6.50 and $7.50 Men's Spring Suits on sale at choice of the lot for $4.98

Celebrities Write Few Letters. Autograph letters of famous men will be far rarer in the future than now. Great men of today content themselves with signing their names, often with rubber stamps, to typewritten documents, and it will be hard to get much sentiment from typewritten manuscripts.—Springfield Republican.
